

Found Wooden Jar

Reclaimed Natural • 224762-001

Overview

Common in the village kitchens of Northern India, wooden jars and vases were originally used for storing water, oil, milk, and butter. Now, an inspired reproduction made from mixed reclaimed woods serves as a storied styling accessory. Try grouping a few together on a bookshelf or table display. Each item is wholly unique, with natural cracks, wear and color variance reflective of its handmade origin. Ranges from 10 - 15" in height and 11 - 13" in diameter.
